Maggie Weldon : A Year of Dishcloths (Annie's Crochet) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised A Year of Dishcloths (Annie's Crochet):

5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Easy fun dishcloth patternsBy Christine H.I first found this on the authors website and decided to check if I could get a better deal on . I was in luck. Once I got it which did not take long I found that the patterns are well thought out, fun and easy to complete. They have really fun themes that you can use as presents for the hard to shop for people in your life. Its a practical fun gift that everyone can use and you can make.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Great. I made a number of theseBy Shirley Lafon StrandGreat. I made a number of these. Instead of using them as dishcloths, however, I sewed them onto padding and made them into potholders. Fun1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Well worth the moneyBy owilladyEasy to read instruction. Something for everyone to give as xmas gifts, secret Santa or secret pal gift at church,or school.

About the Author Maggie Weldon began crocheting in 4th grade, learning the chain stitch from a nun after school. After chaining forever - she had a huge ball of just chains. Maggie was learning to sew at the same time and thought she would have to sew the chains together side-by-side with a needle and thread. Crochet stitch diagrams in popular magazines helped her to get back on track with crochet and she found she really loved it. Since 1981, Maggie has designed countless afghans and home decor projects for publishers and yarn companies. Her designs have been featured in numerous leaflets, magazines, books and even on TV! As founder of Maggie's Crochet, she publishes leaflets and kits based on her own designs. There are currently more than twenty books and over two hundred kits in the Maggie's Crochet product line. Moving from Michigan to North Carolina was a long-time goal for Maggie and she says living there is a dream come true. Her daughter is following in Maggie's footsteps and is a great crocheter and beginning designer. When she's not designing absolutely beautiful crochet items, Maggie enjoys hiking and taking pottery classes. Following her trend of innovative ideas Maggie has incorporated crochet even into her pottery, using crochet doilies to make impressions on her hand built pieces. Calling it Lace Pottery, some of her work has been displayed in an art gallery.
