Excerpt from Bookbindings, Old and New: Notes of a Book-Lover, With an Account of the Grolier Club, New York. Grolier had the good fortune to live through the glorious years of the Renaissance, when all the arts were reviving at once and flourishing together; and he had the good judgment to aid in the development of the art of book binding to which he attached his name inseparably. The art was not new when he began to collect the best works of the best printers, but it was about to have a new birth; and when it was born again, he helped to guide its steps.
